GOOD NEWS: ‘No servant can be the slave of two masters: he will either hate the first and love the second, or treat the first with respect and the second with scorn.’”

Where our heart is, there our treasure will be—in other words, what we value the most will determine our actions. We have a choice between being of-the-world or of-the-kingdom. As the gospel tells us we can only have one master.

As Christians, we have been drawn in to a unique relationship with God the Father—namely his sons and daughters. This in itself challenges us in our everyday life. The world however has a different way of looking at life—one which puts the individual first and demands attention for self.

We are meant to follow the example given to us by Jesus, who came as man with all the limitations that all people experience. At the beginning of his ministry, he was tempted by the devil with promises of authority, power and possessions. He rejected the temptations to fulfil the will of the Father. We too can guarantee that we will be tempted to accept the way of the world.

Each of us has been blessed by God with particular talents and abilities, the problem arises when we consider them as ‘mine’. Possessiveness can result in a hoarding and protecting of “what is mine”, to the point that others who could benefit from our sharing are neglected.

Jesus used the example of money in the Gospel passage. Something that we all require, but it is a matter of how we use it that matters. Not just a matter of how much we give to charity or even the church, but how we use all of our money. Being careful and not wasteful, making provisions for the future, balancing the budget of the household, all these are important. What is also important is to have an awareness of others needs, both our brothers and sisters and the upkeep of the parish itself.

Often when people approach the church for help, they have the impression that the Catholic Church is rich, almost a bottomless pit of money which will be available to them. As a parish over the last ten or more years we have attempted to manage the budget so that we are not wasteful. The money which is contributed through the weekly collections and fundraising, is placed in our care to be managed responsibly. We do not have excess funds which are to be handed out on request, neither do you in your own situation.

Expectation of people who are looking for help, can vary greatly. Sometimes we can meet people who would say, “I don’t like to ask for charity’, they struggle on until someone discovers their need. There are other who feel that it is their right to have as much as they can get at as little cost to them. There is a vast difference between a hand-out and a hand-up. Helping people to be responsible is a step in the right direction and we have to remember that the early church took a dim view of those who rode on the backs of others. St Paul told the people if a person was not prepared to work, then they should not be rewarded.

We urged you when we were with you not to let anyone eat if he refused to work. Now we hear that there are some of you who are living lives without any discipline, doing no work themselves but interfering with other people’s. In the Lord Jesus Christ, we urge and call on people of this kind to go on quietly working and earning the food that they eat. (2 Tes 3:10-12)

Generosity and gratitude go hand in hand, the person who recognizes that God has been generous to them, is more likely to be able to share with others. The person who is grateful for what others have shared with them, is equally more likely to be able to share with others.

In the gospel, Jesus tells us that being able to manage the things of the world in a sensible way, will affect the way that we manage the things from above. Having a wider view of life than what I want, may lead to an awareness of what I require. And hence, in terms of heaven, if we want to reap the benefits at the end of life, what must we do here and now.

Humour Dan hated dogs, he hated them with a passion. One morning Dan was driving his car down a busy street when to his surprise he saw ahead of him a fellow running full force with 2 big dogs after him. “I’ve just got to save this guy”, thought Dan, and with that he quickly sped up along side of him, rolled down his window, and screamed “hurry, hop in!” “Thanks!” said the fellow opening the door, “it’s always hard for me to get a ride when I have my two dogs with me!”

Father Cassidy was asking the children in the parish primary school why they believed in God.

There was a variety of answers, some full of simple faith, some obviously insincere. The one that stopped him came from young Jerome.

“I suppose it just runs in our family”.

Spirituality for Life

The voice of the Spirit speaking of gratitude, generosity, responsibility and increase

Each one of you has received a special grace, so, like good stewards responsible for all these varied graces of God, put it out at the service of others.”
(1 Peter 4:10)

25th Sunday in Ordinary Time

“No servant can serve two masters. He will hate one and love the other, or be devoted to one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon (wealth).” LUKE 16:13

Is money a “god” that you put before God? Giving money to support the Church and other charity is a pillar of our Faith, just like attending Mass every Sunday and participating in parish ministry. Giving money frees us from being a slave to money and increases our dependence on God and to trust that He will provide all that we need. THE CALL – THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP

Discipleship Is costly,
Because it requires us to put aside the craving for domination, possession, and control, for Jesus.
Discipleship Is grace,
Because it confers true liberation and eternal life.
A Disciple’s Response – A Pastoral Letter on Stewardship

Jesus says, “I came so that you might have life and have it more abundantly.” (John 10, 10)
But discipleship is not an easy way. “If you wish to come after me,” Jesus also says, “you must deny yourself and take up your cross daily and follow me. For if you wish to save your life you will lose it, but if you lose your life for my sake you will save it.”

Initially, I am hard pressed to think of what being a disciple of Jesus has cost me. But I am also hard pressed to think of what being an adult or a parent has cost me – even though I know I’ve made sacrifices. Certainly, moving out on my own and paying my own way as a gainfully employed adult meant giving up some of the fun and carefree things I used to enjoy when living and depending on mom & dad. And unquestionably, the pursuits and possessions I have foregone to have children are many. But the reality is that the joy one derives from the results of those sacrifices totally obscures and blots out any of the costs. I believe the same is true with the costs of being a disciple of Jesus Christ and discipleship.

Questions:

Who do you know who has sacrificed significantly for Jesus sake?

What have they given up? Have they gained anything? Do they seem less concerned with possessions or control?

What exactly have you given up in possessions, prestige, or power to follow Jesus?

When we begin with the far greater challenge of being a disciple of Jesus, stewardship becomes a response that is part and parcel of who we are and what we believe. Stewardship formation and education must begin with a radical call to be disciples of Jesus. Archbishop Thomas
