GOOD NEWS: Judgement and Accountability.

This is a story about our accountability to God. There is a very serious sense of personal responsibility in the story which runs counter to the fashion of thinking today.

We have come from an age when many people were weighed down by an excessively strict concept of God. Theology was far more concerned with the defence of orthodoxy than savouring the delight of God: like somebody at a sumptuous meal who is so concerned about the possibility of harmful additives in the food that he cannot enjoy the taste of anything. Fear of God paralysed many people in their creativity and stunted their initiative. Many consciences were damaged for life.

From the extreme of strictness we have swung to the opposite extreme of leniency. Authority is rejected: discipline is not in favour: the need for punishment is not understood, correction is not accepted. As a result, we have a generation with no backbone, when people are incapable of making a firm commitment or of sticking faithfully to a promise.

It has led to a very feeble sort of religious thought and produces wishy-washy statements like: "All Jesus really asked for was love, but all the church give is laws.

But where is the single-minded Jesus who preached the need for repentance: who was angry with the money-changers and hypocrites; who forgave the adulterous woman but told her to sin no more: who asked his followers to take up their crosses and follow him? This feeble thinking picks and chooses what one likes from religion and disregards what does not appeal.

The existence and influence of the devil are not taken seriously. Hell is denied. And having to face the light of judgment and render an account of life is totally forgotten. At the old extreme, justice untampered by mercy produced a servile fear of God. 'Sir, ... I was afraid ... so I hid your talent in the ground.' But at the present extreme, a religion which stresses mercy but disregards God's justice is producing serious moral irresponsibility.

The parable of the talents makes the point that God has invested in us and expects to make a profit on each investment. The return that God expects is that the divine love which we have received would be spread out on earth by us.

St John seems to suggest that God's love is incomplete until we pass it on. 'As long as we love one another God will live in us and his love will be complete in us.' (1 Jn 4:12) God's love does not come to perfection on earth until we accept it and pass it on to others. God's investment is to be turned to profit, not to be buried in the ground.

The mistake being made by our contemporary feeble thinking is in understanding how firm and tough Christian love must be.

Love is firm in its obedience to the commandments: in its faithfulness until death: and in its stubborn refusal to be turned aside by hurt of malice. Love is tough in its willingness to confront, to challenge, to correct. Love is the courage to take up the cross and the loyalty to stand with Jesus. Love is being faithful to God in every small moment and every small encounter, for the small moments accumulate and give the overall shape to life.

In the parable, the master congratulates and rewards those who were faithful and productive in the small affairs. And when we render an account for our lives, it will be according to these everyday use of God's talents in us.

Well done, good and faithful servant; you have shown you can be faithful in small things, I will trust you with greater; come and join your master's happiness.

Share the Dignity have a Christmas appeal called It's in the Bag which as a Parish we will be participating in. You have the power to make life better for a woman or girl experiencing homelessness or poverty this Christmas. Donate to our Christmas collection "It's in the Bag". Provide Sanitary items, personal hygiene products and everyday luxuries to homeless women, women at risk or women experiencing domestic violence. It's simple. First of all, choose a handbag you no longer use. Then, fill it with essential items like Sanitary items, toothbrush, toothpaste, deodorant, shampoo, conditioner and anything else that would make a woman or girl feel special. Pop in a thoughtful note or Christmas card and show her someone cares. Show her that she matters because everyone deserves to feel that way.

Don't forget the teenage girls either if you do a teenage bag tie a yellow ribbon onto the handles so the volunteers who distribute know that that bag is for a teenager.

Next time you're at the shops, collect a few items for your Christmas handbag.

Please drop your bags into the office by 4pm Wednesday 29th November. Thank you

Spirituality for Life

Each one of you has received a special grace, so, like good stewards response -able for all these varied graces of God, put it out at the service of others.” (1 Peter 4:10)

November 19, 2017 - 33rd Sunday in Ordinary Time

“Well done, my good and faithful servant. Since you have been faithful in small matters, I will give you great responsibilities.”- MATTHEW 25:21 God expects us to nurture and develop the gifts He has given us and then generously return a portion with increase. He doesn't want us to waste or hoard the gifts He has given us; He expects us to grow our gifts, use them wisely and be generous with them. Unfortunately, many of us are not generous in proportion to all that God has given us. Accessed from <http://archstl.org/stewardship/page/bulletin-inserts> on 10th November, 2017)

God's Gifts to us of Time Talent and Treasure.

The Gifts of God

Think of God's gifts in broader terms, beyond simply the material goods or security we may enjoy. Consider the preciousness of the following gifts:

- Our faith, hope and love
- Our family and loving relationships
- Our intelligence and skills
- Our imagination and vision
- Our world in all its beauty.

“Stewardship involves a far more radical challenge than the sharing of our resources with the church. There is no doubt that it is important to ask people to live a life of stewardship which is prayerful, planned, proportionate and sacrificial”
(Archbishop Thomas Murphy)

What this means in practice is that we have to recognize the gifts that God has given to us, then consciously make a decision to return a proportion of them with an increase.

The gifts may be grouped in three sections:

- Time
- Talent
- Treasure

In terms of time, how do you use your time, for yourself, your family, and your God? How much time do you give to the needs of your family? What proportion of your day is given to God in prayer? What sacrifice do you make of 'your' time so that others may benefit?

In terms of talent, in what way has God blessed you with skills and abilities. Do you use these talents to help other people? When there is an appeal for the sharing of talents at church, do you respond?

In terms of treasure, do you think of your income as a gift from God? Are you well off compared to others around you. Do you use your treasure wisely, or wastefully? What proportion of your treasure do you give as an offering to the church?

Once you begin to ask these questions, there will be the opportunity to respond. The sharing of your time, talent and treasure can be enjoyable and even beneficial to your own health.

The starting point is to use a little of your time to look at how God has blessed you with talents, and then to make a decision how much of your time and which of your talents you would be willing to give back to God along with a portion of your treasure.
